On the Cover

Looking down at Earth from space, we see a nighttime composite image of Europe taken by the Suomi NPP satellite. More than 12000 seismic stations looking down into Earth from Europe contribute to the new European Integrated Data Archive, one of the services discussed in this issue's focus section on "European Seismic Networks and Associated Products and Services". The twenty-eight papers that comprise the focus section touch in one way or another on collecting, archiving, disseminating and using seismic data, with an emphasis on inter-European and international collaboration
